

ABSTRACT

A non-fermented, dairy-based food product, such as a food sauce, that is acidulated, preferably without any substantial harsh flavor or lumpy texture, and a process for making the food product. The food product may be rendered shelf stable without the necessity of exposure to high temperatures.